To Whom It May Concern:

Timothy Williams was hired in the Spring of 2002 as an Art Instructor for the Sheila and Wally Weisman Family Sundays program at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. His art workshops have been incredibly successful and we look forward to his future participation in family days.

In his first workshop, Timothy taught life drawing where the families sketched from a live model. His model dressed in a period piece costume correlating to the day's theme of European painting. On another day with the theme of portraiture, Timothy brought hats for the kids to wear while drawing self-portraits using mirrors.

Life drawing and self-portraiture can be very intimidating projects for new artists. Timothy's creativity, enthusiasm, and warm encouragement helped the families find inspiration and confidence and lose any fear or hesitation they came with. His workshops were very popular and the families were proud of the work they produced.

Timothy Williams' resourcefulness in acquiring costumes and his fresh approach to teaching have made us very excited for his next workshops. I highly recommend him as a fine art instructor for children and families.

Sincerely,
